

Abstract of the Disclosure

A dehydrated composition is provided that includes freeze-dried erythrocytic cells. A method for loading a solute into a cell comprising disposing a cell in a solution having a solute concentration of sufficient magnitude to produce hyperosmotic pressure on the cell for transferring a solute from the solution into the cell. A method for retaining a solute in a cell.